

view to correlating the facts gathered by much hard work and inconvenience, as well as pleasure. I take it for granted that all of us have in mind, in all our study, the advancement of our favorite science by this field work. With that in our mind, it becomes our privilege to place the facts learned where they will do the most good. Just as we are able to come closer to the truth according to the material at our disposal, in the same measure will those who have begun the investigation of some special topic be able to give us the truth. If, then, your note-book is to accomplish the purpose for which it was kept, day after day and week after week, parts of it, at least, must find their way into the hands of our committee-men. Will you not, each one, make it your pleasure to send at once such facts as you may have learned, to the appropriate committee? Let it be your immediate pleasure.

But the winter season need not be a time for dullness in bird study to many of us. There is, in the winter months, almost as much that is interesting among the birds as at other times. How many of us are really acquainted with our local winter bird fauna, and with the winter habits of the birds? Is there not ample room here for a great deal that is new and of great interest? I sincerely hope that the good work that was begun last winter in the way of making censuses, censo-horizons and horizons of the winter birds may continue with renewed energy and interest. I firmly believe that it is a work worthy of our best efforts: a work that will yield greater results for the same effort than any other field work. Let us fill the January issue with December records, making the month a memorable one in our experience.
